Bronwen was born in Nigeria and brought up in Senegal. She is an American citizen now living in Turin. She holds a Bachelor's degree in both Political Science and International Studies from Macalester College, Saint Paul, MN, USA, and a MSc. in Management of Development from the Turin School of Development and the University of Turin, in Italy. Her lifetime of international travel has contributed to her knowledge of English, French, Italian and Portuguese and has strengthened her ability to communicate across cultures.

She began her career working in communications and fundraising, gaining professional experience at the UNESCO offices in Dakar, Senegal and working with political think tanks, human rights organisations, and other NGOs. Later, she moved towards education both as a coordinator for student affairs, but also as a language teacher.

After gaining her Master's in policy, programme, and project cycle management, she was able to combine her teaching interests with policy analysis during her tenure at the International Training Centre of the ILO where she worked specifically on developing learning activities, workshops and training materials.

Bronwen joined The Development Alchemists Ltd in 2014 where she delivers training, facilitation, and coaching to businesses and professionals in both English and Italian. Her work takes her across continents in the public, private and international sectors as she also continues to consult in policy, programme, and project development.
